"EXCESSIVE UNEMPLOYMENT IS IN EFFECT"

During times of high unemployment, state law permits the Department's Division of Labor Standards to declare that excessive unemployment is in effect, allowing only workers from certain states to work on the Missouri's public works projects. Public works projects are construction projects funded wholly or partially from public funds, or are projects that benefit the public such as but not limited to schools, parks, fire houses, and government buildings. The excessive unemployment law does not apply to projects funded in part by Federal Funds.

Restrictive states have laws in place restricting Missouri workers to work on their public works projects. Workers from these states are also not allowed to work on Missouri's public works projects.

Only Missouri laborers and laborers from nonrestrictive states are allowed by law to be employed on Missouri's public works projects when the unemployment rate exceeds 5 percent for two consecutive months. (See Sections 290.550 through 290.580 RSMo). To file a complaint against a contractor for employing a worker from one of the restrictive states below on a Missouri public works project, submit the complaint form online for the Division to investigate.

Restrictive states—workers from these states are NOT allowed to be employed on Missouri public works projects: Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, North Dakota, South Dakota, and the U.S. Virgin Islands, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Non-Restrictive States—workers from these states are allowed to be employed on Missouri public works projects: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Hawaii, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.
